A Note from Amy

When I accepted the role of Communications Director, I knew one thing for certain: No one person can tell the story of the City of Ellsworth. That story belongs to all of us. Every department, every employee, every project, every conversation with a resident contributes to how our community experiences local government.

My role is to help bring those stories to life. Sometimes that means writing a press release. Sometimes it means preparing someone for a television interview. Sometimes it means celebrating an employee milestone or explaining a complicated City project in plain language.

Whatever the task, my goal is always the same: Help Team Ellsworth communicate with clarity, transparency, and heart.

This guide isn't about rules. It's about helping us work together so residents receive accurate information from the people who know it best.

Thank you for trusting me to help tell your stories. I look forward to telling many more together.

Amy Kenney

Director of Communications, City of Ellsworth
